ON THE BRINK OF DISASTER—Literally on the brink of disaster is the locomotive of the Chicago and Alton's Midnight Special to St. Louis. Its forward truck dangling, the engine is pictured after running into an open bridge over the Chicago River. A few feet more and it would have plunged, dragging the train with it.

Reds Throw Nazis Into Wrong Gear

Associated Press
Authoritative sources in London, commenting on reports from a neutral capital, said today there was some reason to believe the German campaign in Russia had been thrown into the wrong gear.
The Germans probably meant to drive for Moscow first, it was said, and then try to take the riches of the Ukraine in collaboration with the lesser Axis armies operating in the south.
Sources in neutral countries submitted the Germans found a comparatively weak spot at the wrong place in the huge eastern front and that the Crimean campaign particularly was of second importance in the Nazis' original scheme of things.
Reports in London said the Germans were pounding at the Perekop Isthmus, four-mile-wide land link of the Crimea with the Russian mainland, but were making scant headway.
"There is no indication of any German advance anywhere," one London authority said.
In Moscow the Red army reported recapture of a city on the approaches to Leningrad and the taking of many other communities in a concentrated series of counter-attacks.
As the violent struggle continued all along the front, Red Star, Soviet army news organ, said the northwestern city of "B" was recaptured after 12 hours of battle which culminated in the bitterest sort of hand-to-hand and house-to-house combat.

Tripover conference members cutting speeches short, met with the idea of formulating by Friday full reports of Russia's war needs and ways of meeting them. Experts on army, navy, air force, transport, raw materials and medicine problems convened separately.
Premier Stalin held a conference of more than three hours with Lord Beaverbrook, W. Averell Harriman and Foreign Commissar Molotov, heads of the British, U.S. and Russian groups, after the appointment of the committees yesterday. It was his second talk with the British and U.S. leaders.
In Berlin, a German military spokesman declared there would be "little news from the eastern front for the next few days" because of "certain reasons," which were not disclosed.
He added "certain importance can be attached" to statements in the German press that the campaign on the Russian front might run into the winter months.
Fierce bayonet fighting was said in Berlin to have developed at places along the southern front where Germans reported the Red army counter-attacked in several sectors but was repulsed.

No Pardon for Valtin

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Jan Valtin, who wrote the best seller, "Out of the Night," was denied a pardon today by the state advisory pardon board.
Valtin, 36, under his true name of Richard Krebs, was convicted in 1926 of assault with a deadly weapon in Los Angeles, and was sentenced to 10 years. He was released in 1929 for deportation to his native Germany and recently re-entered this country illegally.

The petitioner, who attacked Communist and Nazi activities in his book, and told of astonishing experiences he said he encountered, applied for a pardon in order to escape deportation to Germany again.
The advisory board voted two-to-one against a pardon, but Gov. Culbert Olson, before whom the matter will next come, may grant a pardon or refuse one.

Swallowed 410 Tacks

WEEHAWKEN, N.J. (AP)—A linoleum and oilcloth worker is in fair condition today at North Hudson Hospital today after a 90-minute operation, during which 410 one-quarter inch tacks, swallowed over a period of years, were removed.
He apparently swallowed the tacks following a practice in his profession of tossing a handful of tacks into his mouth while working. The operation was performed last Saturday, when the tacks were revealed by an X-ray for another ailment.

The surgeon used a small electro-magnet and virtually every instrument he had in removing the tacks.
The hospital did not disclose the name of the patient or surgeon.

Noble Pair Seek Job Without Salary

LONDON (CP)—Conventional Londoners got a shock today when they read the following advertisement in the personal column of The Times:
"Middle-aged peer and peeress, energetic, capable, former with military business experience, good linguist, latter good organizer, and two half years' general nursing experience. Desire suitable employment together with accommodation. No salary."

Dining-room Strike

TORONTO (CP)—With more than 100 employees on strike the King Edward Hotel closed its dining-room at noon today and sent guests to the cafeteria. The beverage room was reopened an hour after the walkout had caused a suspension of service.
The union is seeking a closed shop agreement. The dispute had its beginning, union officials said, in the hotel's refusal to include kitchen help in a new agreement.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The 9,400-ton British cruiser Manchester, Capt. H. Drew, R.N., is at the Philadelphia yard for "a general refit," it was announced today.

Gayda Threatens

ROME (AP)—Vittorio Gayda declared today new actions of the Axis soon would disprove reports of weakening morale in Italy and Germany which he accused "the Anglo-Saxons" of inventing.

Turkish Conference

ANKARA (AP)—Turkish ministers to four Axis powers—Germany, Italy, Rumania and Bulgaria—either are in the Turkish capital or are on their way here for conferences with the government.

McLarty on Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hon. Norman McLarty, federal Minister of Labor, arrived here from Ottawa today to confer with principals of both sides in the strike at the Pacific Bolt Manufacturing Company.

Imrie to Retire

EDMONTON (CP)—Retirement of John M. Imrie as managing director of the Edmonton Journal, was announced today. Walter A. MacDonald, business manager of the Journal for the last four years, succeeds Mr. Imrie.

No Fight Pictures

NEW YORK (AP)—There won't be any motion pictures at your film palace to settle arguments about the Joe Louis-Lou Nova fight. After viewing the films today, the distributors decided they made too dull a show, except for the actual knockout punch and a brief flurry in the fourth round, and as a result they will not send them out.

Hess Annoyed Tries to Strike

LONDON (CP)—Rudolf Hess, Hitler's former deputy who made a sensational flight to Scotland last April, was reported tonight to have started hunger strikes twice in his place of detention in anger because he was being treated as a prisoner of war and not as a "special envoy."

The Star, London evening newspaper, reporting Hess was being confined "within a very easy distance of London," said he was contending that as an "envoy" he should be allowed to return to Germany at once.

The Star implied Hess now was living in comfortable quarters, saying:

"Some of our very senior officers who have been captured by the enemy now occupy decent villas. Has Hess a villa or something better suited to his higher rank?"

Government officials, who have been silent regarding Hess since his spectacular landing nearly five months ago, declined to comment on the Star story.

Churchill Says Nazis Weaken, Britain Considers Invasion

LONDON (AP)—Britain has seized the initiative from Germany in the air, has cut shipping losses two-thirds in three months, and has "several times" considered invasion of the German dominated continent, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today in a broad war review which was the most optimistic he yet has given.

The Prime Minister did not thus rule out the possibility of a British invasion of the continent, remarking Hitler "does not tell us his plans and I do not see why we should tell him ours."

Following is the text, in part, of Mr. Churchill's address:
The House will remember that in June last I deprecated making too frequent expositions of government policy and reviews of war positions by the ministers...

For seven months Hitler has said nothing about his war plans. What he blurted out in January and February certainly proved helpful to us.

"In the spring," he said, "our submarine warfare will begin in earnest. . . . In March or April naval warfare will start such as the enemy never expected."

We were therefore led to expect a crescendo of attacks on our lifeline of supply by U-boats and long-range aircraft. Other counter-measures which were undertaken in good time on the largest scaled proved very successful. . . .

Apart from anything which may happen this afternoon, losses by enemy action of British, allied and neutral merchant ships during the quarter of July, August and September have been only one-third of those losses during the quarter of April, May and June.

Axis Losses Grow By Leaps, Bounds

During the same period our slaughter of enemy shipping—German and Italian—has been increasing by leaps and bounds. It is about one and a half times what it was in the previous three months. . . .

Very few important ships carrying munitions have been lost on the way. Our reserves of food stand higher than at the outbreak of the war—far higher than a year or 18 months ago. . . .

There will be better Christmas dinners than last year and more justification behind the dinners.

It seems likely now that we shall bring in several million tons more than the import total which I mentioned in private to the House earlier in the year, which total was itself sufficient to keep us going.

We are now within a measurable distance of an immense flood of American new building which together with our own construction we look to carry us through 1942 and on progressively to the end of the war.

We must expect enemy U-boat warfare to continue with larger numbers of U-boats supported by aircraft. The U-boats will be beaten by a corresponding intensification of our own measures and also by assistance we are receiving in an increasing degree from other quarters.

We must not relax, but the facts I have stated must be regarded as not satisfactory. They are most gratifying to Hitler. . . .

The fact that at every stage we have to consider the interest of our Russian ally and the wish and action of the United States makes it more necessary and imperative that I and my colleagues should be particularly careful about any pronouncements, explanations or forecasts. . . .

From Pit of Peril To Broad Plateau

In the climb from a pit of peril onto a fairly broad plateau we can see before us the difficult and dangerous onward path we must tread, but we can see a parallel of movement of the convergence of the two mighty nations I have mentioned, Russia and the United States.

We feel around us an upsurge of the enslaved nations of Europe. . . .

I cannot attempt to discuss at the present time questions of future strategy. They are discussed every day in the newspapers, but I do not think the government ought to take any part just now in debates.

Take the question whether we should invade the continent of Europe in order to relieve some of the weight on Russia. I should be guilty of no indiscretion if I admitted that these questions have several times occurred to those responsible for the conduct of the war.

Hitler has told us nothing since his speech in February. We are in complete ignorance of what he is going to do.

We don't know how far he will attempt to penetrate the vast lands of Soviet Russia in the face of the valiant Russian defences, or how long his people will endure their own tremendous losses, or again whether he will decide to stand on the defensive and exploit territory of immense value which he has conquered.

We do not know whether he will turn a portion of this vast army southward towards the Valley of the Nile, or if he will make his way through Spain into north-west Africa, or whether, using the great continental railways of Europe and an immense chain of airfields, he will shift his weight and assemble an army for an intensive invasion of the British Islands.

It will certainly be in his power while standing on the defensive in the east to undertake all three of these hazardous enterprises on a great scale.

Only Nazi Shortage In Airpower

His only shortage is in the air. That is a very serious shortage, but for the rest he still retains the initiative and we have not had the force to take it from him. He has the divisions and weapons and on the mainland of Europe he has ample means of transportation.

If he does not tell us his plans, I don't see why we should tell him ours. I can assure the House we are studying and pondering over these dangerous possibilities and how best to dispose of our resources to meet them. . . .

There is, however, one matter on which I may speak a little more freely, namely, the material assistance in the way of munitions and supplies we are giving Russia.

The British and United States missions are now in conference with the chiefs of the Soviet in Moscow. The interval which has passed since President Roosevelt and I sent our message from the Atlantic to Stalin has been used in ceaseless activity on both sides of the ocean. The whole ground has been surveyed in the light of new events and many important supplies already have been dispatched.

Our representatives and our American colleagues have gone to Moscow with a clear and full knowledge of what we are able to give month by month from now onwards.

The Soviet government have a right to know what monthly quotas of weapons and supplies we can send them and they can count upon. . . .

I must say at once that in order to enable Russia to remain indefinitely in the field as a first-class war-making power, sacrifices of a most serious kind and a most extreme effort will have to be made by the British people, and enormous new installations or conversions from the existing plants will have to be set up in the United States.

Transportation Limiting Factor

We have just had a symbolic tank week for Russia. . . . It is not only tanks. We have to send precious aircraft, aluminum, copper, rubber, oil and many other materials vital to modern war, large quantities of which already have gone. It may be that transportation, rather than willingness or ability to give, will prove in the end the limiting factor.

All this now is being discussed by our representatives and the American representatives in Moscow with Stalin. . . .

In some respects the problems we now have to face are similar to those which rent our hearts last year, when we had to refuse to send away from this country for helping France the last remaining squadrons of fighter aircraft on which our whole future position depended, or again when we rightly judged Hitler's unpreparedness for invasion in the summer of 1940 and took the plunge of sending so many of our tanks and trained troops around the Cape to the Nile Valley in order to destroy the Italian army in Libya and Abyssinia.

IVAN MAISKY, RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR to the Court of St. James, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, shown leaving St. Paul's Cathedral in London. Today, in the House of Commons, Maisky heard Churchill's review of the war and every time the Prime Minister mentioned Russia, say press dispatches, the ambassador, leaning over the diplomatic gallery rail, intent on every word, cheered throatily and heartily, with delight.

If it is now thought we solved those problems correctly, we should hope there may be grounds for confidence that in these new problems His Majesty's government and their professional advisers will not err either in the direction of improvidence or want of courage. . . .

We have never had, and never shall have, an army comparable in number to the armies of the Continent. At the outbreak of the war our army was insignificant as a factor in the conflict, but with very great care and toil and time we have now created a medium-sized but very good army. . . .

It has not had the repeated successful experiences of the German army, which are a formidable source of strength, but, nevertheless, a finely-tempered weapon has been forged.

It is upon that weapon, supported by nearly 2,000,000 armed and uniformed home guards, that we rely to destroy or hurl into the sea the invader, should he succeed in making a number of successive and simultaneous lodgments on our shores.

Must Keep Force Ready in England

When I learn about the absolutely indescribable qualities which the German police and troops have come to on the Russian population in the rear of the armored vehicles, the responsibility of His Majesty's government to maintain at home a new high-class force to beat down and annihilate any lodgements from the sea or air comes to me in a significantly ugly and impressive form. . . .

CHURCHILL, IN HIS COMMONS' SPEECH TODAY, spoke of British considerations for an invasion of the German-held continent of Europe. This greatly interested Canadians, for unconfirmed reports say units of the Canadian corps recently crossed the English Channel in small boats during the night and raided an isolated place in which the staff of a German division rested or had its headquarters. According to the unconfirmed story 28 German officers were made prisoners and taken to England. Some day the British may try to nip off the peninsula of Brittany by attacks from either side and capture Brest, Lorient, Quiberon and other submarine bases. On the map of the northern French coast, Deauville and Dinard, and Brittany and Normandy are located.

British Invasion Now Of No Use

LONDON (CP)—An authoritative source, discussing Prime Minister Churchill's references, today to the possibility of invasion of the continent, said the Germans were maintaining 26 divisions in France against just such an eventuality and a land attack now by the British army "would do Russia no good and result in another Dunkerque."

Poor Treatment From 'Crabs'

He must indeed be a capacious critic who can find a pretext to make a quarrel out of that. . . . It ill deserves the treatment it received from our natural professional crabs.

Let me repeat, I cannot give the House any flattering hopes, still less any guarantee the future will be bright or easy. On the contrary, even the coming winter affords no assurance, as the Russian ambassador had candidly and shrewdly pointed out, that German pressure on Russia will be relaxed, or that the coming winter gives any assurance the danger of invasion will be entirely lifted from these islands. . . .

We must certainly expect that in the spring very heavy fighting, much heavier than any we have yet experienced in this war, will develop in the west, and also the menace to these islands from invasion will present itself in very hard form. . . .

Singapore Arrivals

SINGAPORE (CP)—A large number of British troops direct from the United Kingdom arrived today. R.A.F. units formed the majority of the arrivals but there also were artillerymen and signalers.

R.A.F. Uses Football Tactics

FOLKESTONE, Eng. (CP)—A flight of four-cannoned Hurricane fighter planes, stretched out in a single line like a football team running forward at the kickoff, raced across the breeze-swept English Channel toward Dieppe, France, this afternoon, apparently employing a novel formation in the day's series of low-level attacks on German positions.

Watchers on shore, who craned their necks all day as the great back-and-forth rush of fighters continued, could clearly see the cannon muzzles projecting from the wings of the low-flying Hurricanes.

The first offensive flights began at dawn, the planes being only a few hundred feet up east-bound and returning so low they skimmed the sea.

Hamburg and Stettin were given their heaviest bombing of the war in overnight raids by hundreds of R.A.F. planes, the Air Ministry earlier announced.

"Many large fires" were set around the docks, railway station and elsewhere in Stettin, one of the cities through which German supplies must pass to the Russian front, it was reported.

Subsidiary attacks were made overnight on docks at Cherbourg and Le Havre.

Eight British bombers were lost. Two fighters also were announced as missing from offensive patrol operations by the fighter command.

One Nazi fighter was shot down by a British bomber, another driven off in a damaged condition and a hostile bomber set on fire in a fighter attack.

(Nazi sources in Berlin admitted the raids on the two Reich ports and claimed "limited" casualties and property damage were caused.)

Stettin had been raided 10 times previously by the R.A.F. It is approximately 600 miles from R.A.F. home bases and destroying of supplies and disrupting of transportation facilities there is considered an important factor in British aid to Russia.

Meanwhile, few Nazi planes flew over the British Isles during the night. Activity was restricted mainly to the eastern coastal districts of England and Scotland. One enemy plane dropped bombs on a town in northeast Scotland, demolishing some houses and causing some casualties, a few fatal, a communiqué said.

Must Help Russia

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Doris Nielsen, M.P. for North Battleford, in an address to a meeting sponsored by the anti-Fascist mobilization committee here last night, declared "if support is denied to the Russians and they are beaten back behind the Ural Mountains, it will lead to a direct threat to Canada. Hitler will gain outposts that make Canada vulnerable along her northern borders."

"If we as a nation do not place ourselves side by side with Britain and the United States along the Soviet Union we will commit national suicide," she declared.

New England's Tonnage

BOSTON (AP) — Home of ship-buildings since the square-rigged era, New England celebrated "Liberty Fleet Day" by launching two destroyers and an oil tanker to boost its new naval and merchant ship construction since January 1 beyond the 200,000-ton mark.

Tonnage turned out in this one section of United States during the nine-month period comprises:

A 35,000-ton battleship, nine destroyers, eight submarines, two cruisers, two seaplane tenders and a host of other vessels, including two cargo ships, minesweepers, patrol craft, tank barges, trawlers and other fishing craft.

On Russia Battlefront

Pistol-packing Women Ready to Shoot Nazis

WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMY ON THE CENTRAL FRONT (AP) — Wearing uniforms, packing pistols—ready to use them—women form an integral part of the Red army and have taken their posts by thousands along the battlefront.

They do not fight unless they have to, but work as nurses, waitresses, stenographers, telephone operators and military clerks.

If their stations are attacked, however, they can and do shoot. An example of the militarized Soviet women is Natalia, 22-year-old buxom blonde senior nurse and doctor's assistant who goes about her duties at a dressing station four miles from no-man's land with a pistol slapping her hip.

Beverly Baxter

Cannot Win Without U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Beverly Baxter, British parliamentarian and journalist, in an address to the Vancouver Canadian Club declared "the world will need Canada after this war."

"Europe is still the cradle of civilization, but it is tired, weary and losing faith," Mr. Baxter said. "In Canada we have industries, money, the best people in the world, if we have in our parliament after the war young men who can speak with the same passion and spirit for Canada as Churchill does for the British race and Roosevelt for the Americans."

Mr. Baxter, addressing 1,100 listeners, said "Canada has yet to realize the place she holds in the imagination of Britain."

He quoted his young son as saying "Canada is a good place for children. . . . Couldn't you get a job here after the war, daddy?"

"No higher tribute could be paid to any country than to say it is a good place for children to live," the speaker said.

Mr. Baxter, tracing the war's course since the fall of France in 1940, said Hitler's attack on Russia had turned the scales in favor of Britain.

"We stand at this moment in a position more favorable than we have ever had any right to expect," he said. "This Russian battle is a colossal thing for us."

"If Germany could have hurled all her massive strength against Britain, without fear of Russia, or had united with Russia against us, one can realize what we have escaped. . . .

"I do not believe Germany can win this war, but it is very difficult to see how we are going to win it unless the United States comes in with us as a full partner. We may avoid defeat but it is going to be very difficult to achieve victory."

"I haven't had any fighting experience because the Germans never got this far," she said. "But if they do" . . . and she patted her pistol holster. "I'm a crack shot."

At divisional headquarters two or three miles from the front lines girls wearing white aprons over khaki uniforms and black boots, wait on tables as nonchalantly as though serving in a Moscow restaurant.

Civilian women also are seen in the front-line areas. Bundled in shawls and layers of heavy clothing they go on working in fields and villages within sound of the artillery.

Troops riding to the front in trucks and men driving tractors close behind the lines often have their wives at their sides.

Feverish Spending

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wall Street Journal says "the costliest and finest diamonds, vintage champagne and silk cravats—expensive goods—are booming across retail counters at a rate that hasn't been seen since 1929."

"There's some buying," the paper said, "because of specific higher taxes ahead. There's some buying in spite of higher taxes ahead. There's some buying that denotes high living and feverish spending—a traditional portent of inflation."

"One thing is certain: Those who have the money for fancy goods are not letting the outlook cramp their style."

DOCTORS DISAPPOINTED

Major-Gen. L. R. LAFLECHE, associate deputy minister for National War Service, told a service club in London, Ont., "the calling out of young Canadians for compulsory military service has disclosed a general state of health which has caused much disappointment" among doctors.

Major-Gen. LaFleche said some medical authorities claim "that much of the unsatisfactory situation respecting the physique of our young men is due to the years of depression."

Hon. R. B. HANSON, Conservative leader in the Canadian House of Commons, and Leonard O'Brien, his New Brunswick colleague, paid what they described as a "most interesting" visit to historic Windsor Castle in England.

They went through the castle, saw St. George's Chapel, where King George V lies buried, and attended the evening service.

Indians Enjoy Prosperity

OTTAWA (CP) — The 120,000 Indians of Canada, who have tasted the lean times of depression are enjoying a better measure of prosperity than for several years, Indian Affairs Department officials said today.

Dr. H. W. McGill, director of the branch who has just returned from a western tour, said that among factors assisting the Indians' economic position was a good fish catch on the Pacific coast and the existing strong fur market with fair supplies of fur-bearing animals in territories where Indians hunt.

Information available to the branch indicated "several hundred" Indians have joined the fighting forces, following in the footsteps of tribesmen who gave good service in the Canadian army during the first Great War.

'Canada Can Take It'

LONDON (CP) — Britons were advised by D. B. Rogers of Regina today to tell Canada the truth about this war.

Speaking in reply to a welcome by Viscount Rothermere, Mr. Rogers told guests at a luncheon given visiting Canadian newspaper representatives by the Newspaper Proprietors' Association that Canadians wanted to hear both sides of the war situation and assured his listeners that Canada "can take it."

As a prelude to his suggestion, the Regina editor told of the hardships endured by westerners, particularly the people of Saskatchewan, where drought and tight had robbed the people of their crops and almost of their livelihood. So, he said, "when it comes to bad news we in the west, and I am sure this applies equally to all Canada, can take it."

MISJUDGED

He said the reason he had presented this background of westerners was because he had "a feeling that you over here are inclined to misjudge the way in which we react to bad news."

Mr. Rogers looked around the huge table at which were seated leaders of the British newspaper industry and other distinguished guests, and asked, "What am I getting at?" and replied:

"Simply this: It has been brought home to me with increasing clarity since coming to England that you people, some of you at any rate—perhaps I should address these remarks more specifically to the Ministry of Information—that you and they feel the most effective way to present the news of the war is to keep constantly emphasizing the bright side of things; to keep playing down the harsher and more dire developments and, instead, to coat in succulent honey all that happens or menaces this island kingdom. . . .

The speaker told how his own paper had realized on the eve of Reconciliation Week how readers had been "lulled too far with comforting columns . . . too far with honeyed headlines and fatuous features . . ."

H.M.S. Nelson Hit By Torpedo

LONDON (CP) — The Admiralty said today an aerial torpedo hit on the battleship Nelson, the loss of a fighter plane crew and sinking of a motor vessel constituted the only cost of moving an important convoy through the central Mediterranean under a week-end running attack by Italian planes.

Thirteen of the raiders were destroyed.

Italians claimed yesterday three British cruisers and at least three merchantmen were sunk and that a battleship, believed to be the Nelson, was damaged. They acknowledged eight Italian planes were missing but said six British planes had fallen.

A torpedo launched by one of the Fascist raiders Saturday slightly reduced the speed of the 16-year-old Nelson, it was said, but there were no casualties among her crew of about 1,360 men.

The Nelson is a vessel of 33,950 tons. She was commissioned in 1925 and normally carries a complement of 1,361 officers and men. The First Lord of the Admiralty, A. V. Alexander, informed the House of Commons of the attack prior to the Admiralty announcement.

Mr. Alexander said the Italians lost 12 aircraft in attacking the Mediterranean convoy whose escort included the Nelson. He said the British forces lost three fighter planes but saved the crews of two.

During the operations, Mr. Alexander asserted, reports were received an Italian naval force was at sea but when the British forces began a search it escaped.

The Italians claimed the battleship was hit on the bow by a torpedo.

The important convoy was shadowed and later attacked in the central Mediterranean last Saturday, Mr. Alexander said, by three groups of torpedo planes with fighter escorts.

They were engaged by naval fighters which shot down four torpedo bombers and one fighter in addition to another "probably destroyed" and several damaged. He said the ships' guns brought down six torpedo bombers and one fighter.

Nazi Sub Master Sick of War

LONDON (CP) — Four days aboard a U-boat as guests of the German commander who was "sick of the war" were among the adventures of the crew of a British tanker sunk in the Atlantic.

The ship's engineer said the tanker, stopped when the submarine fired five shots across her bow, was sunk by gunfire after the crew had been taken aboard the U-boat. The sailors later were transferred to a United States vessel.

After passing out cigarettes the German commander told the seamen:

"I am sick of the war. We never should be fighting you. As soon as I can, I am getting out of the submarine service, by fair means or foul. We are left out here with little food, to be hunted day and night. It is suicide. We are all dissatisfied."

Over the cuts (photographs) the paper spread the bold caption: "These men have given their lives for freedom . . . what are you doing about it? . . . let us make up our minds whether we, too, are doing our share."

Apologies were offered by the speaker on the grounds the work of "a small provincial newspaper in remote Canada" probably was not of much interest to publishers over here, but then asked if newspaper problems and war problems were not the same in Britain as in Canada.

"I would not be so presumptuous as to attempt to answer that question," he said, "but I leave it with you for what it is worth, together with this one observation: In Canadian eyes Britain has never seemed so grand as during those dark and dire days of Dunkerque, as during and after that fierce first Battle of Britain when we had bad news with the good."

Succession Worries Rajah Of Sarawak

By C. YATES McDANIEL

KUCHING, Sarawak (AP) — The white rajah, absolute ruler of tropical Sarawak, has called on the mixed races of his land to help him govern.

At colorful ceremonies marking the 100th year of rule by an English family, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke announced his plan to Malay chieftains in brilliant sarongs, silk-gowned Chinese gentry and painted tribal headmen clad in feather crowns and loincloths.

They had come to pledge their loyalty and to touch hands with the rajah on his gold-cloth dais—for the first white rajah in 1840 had forbidden the natives to kneel before the throne of Sarawak (pronounced sa-rah'-wa—not sarah walk).

The Rajah declared the beginning of constitutional rule from a platform on which the colors of Sarawak were flanked by the Union Jack of Britain, the Kuomintang emblem of China and the Stars and Stripes. (Sarawak has not forgotten that the United States in 1850 was first to recognize her sovereignty.)

The problem of succession to his absolute rule has plagued the monarch in recent years. His three children—among them the glamorous "Baba," sometime of Hollywood—all are girls.

With the Rajah beside him, the Rajah presided at the swearing-in of a supreme council. Some took the oath on the Bible; others on the Koran of Mohammedanism.

The Rajah charged his council with creating a legislative committee representative of the state's varied geographical, racial and religious groups to draw up a constitution.

Hope and Warning

THREE YEARS AGO TODAY IN THESE columns we began a discussion of the proceedings which had just taken place in an ancient and romantic Bavarian city with this: "After Munich, What?" We said "the bill of cost will be made out in due course," and added "it will be for the historian to render a judgment on the moving events of these days from a perspective naturally denied to us who are so near to them." The rest is tragic history with which the world is all too familiar. Now comes the third anniversary of what still is entitled to be termed an effort to avoid another great war—which, alas, already is now more than two years old—and we find the man whose words of warning between 1936 and 1939 made little or no impression on the official mind of Britain telling the world he expects the conflict to last through 1942.

But if there is much in what has taken place in these three years that must inevitably remain for the historian to unravel and annotate, the anxious times through which we are passing have their compensations—costly and nerve-racking as they are and for many months will be—the chief among which, of course, is the certain knowledge that the might of the two dictators who won their diplomatic victory at Munich on September 30, 1938, will gradually but surely crumble against the forces of decency and liberty. We may go so far as to say that when free men look back on these tragic years, when they render a calm judgment in the light of the victory to which they pledged themselves at the beginning of September, 1939, they will study "the bill of cost" and think the payment not too great after all. For if the enormous sacrifice, the agony of mind and soul, shall have removed the danger of war for all time, the blood shed and material treasure dissipated will have been worth the high endeavor it has represented.

Mr. Churchill's words in the House of Commons this afternoon will come as a tonic to the men and women of Britain and Russia who are consecrating everything they have and are to the cause of survival and ultimate deliverance from the horror of Hitlerism and all totalitarian philosophy connates. While the Prime Minister does not underestimate—he never has—the power and potential capacity for still further destruction of life and property inherent in the huge Nazi war machine, he has told the world today that Germany is suffering a "very serious" shortage in equipment for aerial combat, and that the loss in merchant shipping in the last three months has been two-thirds less than the combined total for April, May and June. It is good to learn this from the man who, from the moment he took charge of Britain's affairs on May 10 last year, has at no time indulged in spurious optimism. Nor did Mr. Churchill evade stern consideration for what may be in store for the fighting democracies. "Sacrifices of the most serious kind will be necessary by the British people," he informed the House, warning the world, too, that if Russia is to continue fighting, it is imperative that an "enormous" conversion of United States factories for the production of war material be immediately undertaken to maintain indefinitely the Soviet Union's valiant resistance to Hitler's Wehrmacht. Then came another of those gems of simple phrasing of which Mr. Churchill is the master architect:

"We have climbed from the pit of peril onto a fairly broad plateau. We can see before us the difficult and dangerous upward path that we must tread, but we can also feel the parallel movement of convergence of two mighty nations, Russia and the United States."

The Prime Minister's companion reminder of dangers and trials ahead, however, must be the clarion call to Canada. The prospect of invasion of the Island fortress, a concerted attack on the Suez Canal and the bastions of the Near and Middle East, an all-out thrust against Africa and Spain—none of these potential threats against territories and lands now enjoying something of a breathing spell, because the German juggernaut is seriously engaged in Russia, was omitted from Mr. Churchill's mixture of comforting news and its concomitant warnings. It is well to close on two questions: Is Canada doing enough or all she could do? Is every individual living up to the pledge he and she solemnly took during Reconsecration Week?

What of the Future?

ONE OF THE QUESTIONS WHICH ought to be carefully studied is the effect of wars on the next generation. To what extent, for example, are Europe's troubles today due to the fact that the best, healthiest, potentially most able of the generation now mature were killed off in 1914-18? How many wise statesmen, how many poets and artists, how many economic and social pioneers, what sheer weight of human brains were dumped into the graves that blossomed from Plochy to Kiev in those years? And what has that loss meant to today's world?

Because all those things are so intangible, nobody can measure them; because they pertain to the spirit no one will ever know, perhaps, their accurate weight. How many children of the generation which grew up directly after the first World War bear today the marks of the insufficient nourishment, the tense, hopeless times in which they lived? Never forget that that is the generation, in large part, which made up the Nazi and Fascist movements. All these factors no man has measured, because they cannot be measured. Yet one knows they exist. The social loss is undoubtedly greater than a similar loss throughout a cross-section of the whole population, because soldiers are selected for physical and mental fitness.

Now it is all happening over again. Though almost as many civilians as soldiers were being killed in this war before the attack on Russia began, the destructive effect on the coming generation will not be less than that of the first World War if it goes on as long. Already in France relief workers and physicians are reporting that babies born are markedly undersize, weighing only two and three pounds at birth. Why? Because their mothers are undernourished. People recently arrived in Victoria from France report that they dare not look into the faces of children. If that be true in that unhappy country, what must be true in Poland, Belgium, Greece and Yugoslavia?

What will the next generation be like in Germany and Italy—decimated by a series of bloody and useless campaigns, "educated" in a mental straitjacket, fed from babyhood on a diet of blood and iron, flavored with the ersatz philosophy of racial superiority? It is time to stop all this once and for all. First, by conclusively beating those who have espoused it as if it were a normal, desirable way of life, who have tried to force it on the rest of the world; second, by a concerted effort on the part of decent folk so to organize the world that no such holocaust as that through which it is now going will ever be its fate again.

A Builder Passes

IN THE WORLD OF FINANCE AND INDUSTRY few had not heard of the life and works of Sir Herbert Holt. He was one of Canada's most eminent commercial builders and took an important part in the many undertakings which assisted the Dominion to arrive at her proud place among the great trading nations of the world. He began life with few of the tangible attributes to success; he reached the New World from his native Ireland with a few dollars in his pocket. Like so many of his race who have made their mark in every quarter of the globe, he possessed a staunch determination to "get on." But success as one is wont to interpret the term did not come quickly; his earlier struggles in his progressive surroundings had their ups and downs. He was never dismayed; but his native ability, shrewd insight, capacity to give and take in the unsympathetic realm of finance and commerce served him well. And for the last three decades the name of Herbert Holt had been one to conjure with. He will be remembered for his works—not for his words. Meaningless platitudes formed no part of the arsenal he fashioned for personal victory. His deeds tell the story of his business success.

'Ragged Regiment'

AT THE FAMOUS BOW STREET POLICE COURT in London the other day a Dr. Thomas Lawrence Ormerod, district tuberculosis officer for the Essex County Council, was fined $12,000 and ordered to pay $30 in costs for failing to offer $28,058 ($6,943) for sale to the British Treasury. The magistrate (Mr. McKenna) said it was pathetic that Dr. Ormerod, who held the King's commission in the last war, "had joined the ragged regiment who preferred to disregard loyalty to the country and their obedience to its laws." Mr. McKenna was particularly scathing, as his remarks indicate, and went on to assure the court that the case before him appeared to be a "deliberate and aggravated attempt" on the part of the accused to ignore his obligations.

There is a moral in this not to be lightly regarded by that element in all the democratic countries which still clings to the belief that after this war has been fought and won—in the name of liberty and a new deal for all decent folk—there will be nothing to prevent them going back to the same old philosophy of "the best man wins and the devil take the hindmost." Such unwise ones are due for disillusionment.

NO PROFITTEERING, NO SCANDALS From Winnipeg Free Press

If this war runs into terrific cost and brings taxation more burdensome than we ever had before, it is at least a satisfaction to know that the war administration is more efficient in many ways than that during the last world conflict. The vast cost is due to the far greater use of the machinery and equipment of war. It can now be said that the quality of the equipment stands high, that there are no political scandals in connection with war contracts, and that there is no profiteering.

In England a few days ago, Lieut. General McNaughton spoke of the quality of the equipment received for the Canadian forces and he praised it highly. Everything from boots and battle dress to Bren guns and carriers, had proved to be the best, he said. The Canadian-built carriers had superior engine power. The boots, from Canadian factories, were the finest that could be obtained; and the battle dress, developed after durability tests, had more wool and better cut than the British battle dress.

The credit for the high quality of war equipment now may be divided between the government, the management of war industries and workers. The specifications are carefully prepared by the government, which also provides for close inspection of the output. Canadian manufacturers are highly skilled, and Canadian workers are efficient.

APPRECIATION

THE POLITICAL PARTIES here have nominated their candidates. Some good men and women have been chosen in all parties and if the best were elected out of each, the intelligence of the Legislature would be raised. But no matter how you regard the intelligence of the candidates, we owe them a debt of gratitude which, doubtless, we shall never pay.

We shall criticize these folk before the election, and those who are unfortunate enough to be elected will be subject for the next four years to general abuse and contempt. They know that, of course, and yet they are ready to take office. Quite seriously I say that they are to be thanked for doing a job which most of us would not think of doing, because we are too lazy, too sensitive or too stupid. And those who accept public office today are little short of heroes. We should be grateful to them. But we should watch them closely. They may not be heroes unless we keep our eyes on them.

AVERAGE MAN

SOME DISTINGUISHED scholars have just been finally considering, arranging and digesting the life of William Shakespeare. This job has been done finally many times before and doubtless will be done finally many times yet, as long as our language lasts. But it is always interesting.

In the newest work the experts find that Shakespeare in all aspects of his life but the theatre was a very ordinary sort of fellow. He could even be rather mean about land, rents and suchlike. He had a trace of snobishness in him also, and thought more of getting a coat-of-arms than of play writing. He frankly enjoyed wealth and a good time.

This is not the sort of thing to teach the young, I suppose. They must be taught the legend of the poet, his eye with fine frenzy rolling, but on the whole it is not surprising to find that the greatest Englishman was not great by the usual standards. He was rather typical of England and of all men. He was among men, not above them. He was great not because he was removed from the mass; as were many other poets, but because he felt everything as the average man felt it, felt it more deeply and could put it into words.

If he were here today I do not doubt that he would be writing about the war, the women's bathing suits, the scandals of Hollywood, the provincial election, the greatness of Churchill and the high cost of living. And because he was one of us we probably would ignore him, as his time largely ignored him. We always imagine that greatness is something in the next town, or at least in the next street, never next door. We always think of the great things of life as being far away when all of them, the very greatest, are to be found under any roof, in any field or forest.

INDIANS

ONE NEVER GOES to the thriving little city of Duncan without distress at the spectacle of the Indian village just across the bridge. Here is the only beautiful spot in Duncan, a natural park beside the river, a beach, a grove of trees, everything that could be used to transform the whole town and make it one of the most attractive in the country. But it is crawling with hideous Indian shacks.

Surely the Indians must be looked after. Our record in this matter is none too good. But is it necessary that people who refuse to accept our ways of life should live right next door to Duncan, almost in its pocket, on the best piece of land around? Surely they would be more comfortable, happier and better off if they were moved to good farm land nearby and their present habitation converted into a civic park. No one seems to care about these things and in all our cities, large and small, we permit any kind of eyesore so long as it does not affect the health of the body. The health of the mind is of no importance.

MAPLES

EASTERN CANADA at this season is more beautiful than our Pacific coast. The maple forests burn in unbelievable colors, unknown here. Still, that should not prevent us from appreciating what we have. In the island woods now the maples are turning to yellow, not to scarlet, but to a fine gold, and they have great hills to display them which are lacking in the east. They have also the rich background of the evergreen forests to make them look in the distance like giant flowers growing in a garden. The dogwoods are turning deep crimson, the spirea leaves are reddening and the arbutus trees are hanging out huge clusters of red berries.

Our woods at this season are nothing to be ashamed of, even before an easterner. And to the people of Ontario, who brag about their superior foliage, we can say with Shelley and his "West Wind": "Oh, wind, if winter comes to Ontario can flannel underwear be far behind?"

A patient in an asylum was observed winding up and making imaginary pitches although he didn't have a baseball in his hand.

An inquiring visitor was told the man was a farmer and bad times had unsettled his mind.

Said the visitor: "I'm a farmer, too, and if I don't get a good crop this year I'll be catching for that chap."

LEADERSHIP

THE CRITICISM of the King government's conduct of Canada's war effort is that it never leads public opinion, never acts as the focal point for crystallizing national enthusiasm, but invariably takes a position in which it appears to be coerced into all its major decisions by the public at large.

Over a period of a year the government has been backing toward general conscription for military service. Conscription for war service, anywhere in the world, is coming just as certain as anything in this world is certain. The only thing which would forestall it would be the unexpected end of the war itself.

Meanwhile the draftees, called up ostensibly for home training and home defence, are quietly being assigned to regular active service units. The draftees themselves are not so glib as not to see the implications of that mode of organization.

At the appropriate moment, when the growing need has become really acute, the government will come out with some formula. There will be some other name for it than conscription. But it will be conscription just the same. That is why the word has quietly gone out to lay off the arguments about compulsory service. When it comes it will arrive so quickly and quietly that no one could possibly believe it was formerly denounced as a menace to national unity.

WAR—BUT NOT MAGNIFICENT

When the Light Brigade of 600 men made its famous charge, the onlooking French general remarked: "It is magnificent, but it is not war." The political strategy of the government in this struggle may be effective in the end. But it is anything but magnificent.

In the first place, the government turns a deaf ear to the demand for some action. Then when the cry for action becomes too loud to be longer ignored, cabinet ministers indignantly deny that there is any need for action. Then when the evidence for the need of action becomes so overwhelmingly and unanswerable the government finally acts.

In the first month of this war R. W. Mayhew, M.P., made a most convincing plea for immediate start on a large scale national shipbuilding program. He was ignored. By July of the following year Howard Green was being told by Hon. Mr. Howe that we could not jump into such things and had to exercise "ordinary business prudence." It was not till April, 1941, that the program was actually launched. The whole program is now but a thin shadow of what it should be because it was started too late.

AUSTRALIA SHOWS HOW

The great mass of the common people of Britain were ahead of the Chamberlain government in what to do about the Nazis and how to fight the war. They never did get their way till they got Churchill and Bevan on the job. The great mass of the common people of Canada are miles ahead of their government in their ideas as to how the war should be won.

Britain applied the principle of compulsory loans long ago. The thousands of Royal Air Force boys who now train in Canada each have a deduction each pay day for income tax. Part of this tax is a forced loan.

Australia has now gone much farther, and will get all required money by taxes and compulsory loans.

It is not only the most efficient way to get the money. But in the end it will prove to be the only effective way to get what is required. TREASURY CLERKS ABOVE ARMED FORCES

Stuart Campbell in Sunday Pictorial (London) Aug. 24, 1941.

Yet it seems even in a war in which the future of this Empire—yes, and of the whole world—may depend upon the British army, its very arteries may be cut by a few clerks who add up figures in a ledger. There must be an end of this obstruction by finance. This war will be won by the virile youth of Britain, nobly inspired by its cause, not by the cashcounters in the treasury.

Hitler has carved up Europe with hardly a pennorth of gold in the bank. For God's sake let us drop the farce of pretending that wads of paper notes will win it back.

HOME WAS NEVER LIKE THIS

A luxurious private yacht, recently turned over to the government, was so hurriedly required that the navy put a crew on board without having had much chance to inspect the ship.

When the captain adjourned to his quarters, formerly those of the yacht's owner, he noticed a set of buttons at the head of his bed and pushed one experimentally. Quicker than you could say Frank Knox, the wall at his right swung open and a full blown bar appeared at his bedside.

Startled, but by no means saddened, the captain pushed the next button. There was a loud rumble, the wall behind him seemed suddenly to melt away, and the next thing he knew his bed had magically merged with that of his executive officer, who had retired, in all innocence, to an adjoining cabin.

fighting retreat until the Germans are forced to call away heavy forces to meet emergencies in other fields.

LIBYA A POSSIBILITY

One of these fields is Libya. The front there is bound to wake up with autumn and campaigning weather. It is also possible that Italy's shortage of supplies—especially food and oil—may become so acute that the Germans will attempt a campaign through Spain against Gibraltar to release Mussolini from his Mediterranean prison.

Efforts like this might extend even the German military strength, but they cannot unless the Battle of the Atlantic is won and England, or England and the U.S. together, can effectively intervene on the continent and draw off some of the forces now attacking Russia. For in spite of all the attention being given to the eastern front, the main theatre of the war is still the Atlantic Ocean. The struggle will be won or lost there.

Mrs. H. McCurdy was hostess Saturday afternoon to 20 soldiers from the Bay Street Armories. The men were driven in private cars from the Armories to Malahat Park, Mrs. McCurdy's home on the summit of Malahat Mountain. Mrs. McCurdy received the guests in the garden and refreshments were served in the living-room. After tea a hat-trimming contest was held, which provided much merriment. Arrangements for the outing were made by the University Women's Club home hospitality committee, under the auxiliary services.

Wed to Dead Man

BERLIN (AP)—A German girl became a widow today without ever having been a wife when she formally wedded a dead man. The girl had been the fiancée of Sergeant Otto Ernest Maiwald, a German soldier in Africa. Last June Maiwald performed the so-called long-distance marriage service before the commander of his unit. By the time the marriage papers reached the girl in her home town of Ebersdorf he had been killed in action. Nevertheless, she went before a registrar and signed the marriage papers. Maiwald had signed and became entitled to a pension.

Institutes of North Island Confer

At the annual conference of the Women's Institutes of North Vancouver Island district held at Qualicum, Mrs. E. Tryon was re-elected president; Mrs. Harrison Brown, vice-president; Mrs. G. Mant, secretary, and Mrs. F. Morgan, treasurer.

The various districts, Parksville, Denman Island, Hornsby Island, Comox, Lazo, Mansons Landing, Lasqueti Island, Qualicum and district gave reports showing much accomplished for the Red Cross. Mrs. Tryon reported thanks received from Canadian soldiers overseas for canned fruit sent by the British Columbia Women's Institutes.

Resolutions were passed regarding litter disfiguring roadside and camping grounds; the extension of public health services for Hornsby and Denman Islands; the completion of road at Sayward district; mothers' and old-age pensions; the establishment of governmental diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union. Speakers included Mrs. B. F. Gummow, provincial president; Mrs. V. S. McLachlan, provincial superintendent, and Professor H. V. Warren, lecturer in mineralogy at the U.B.C.

Metropolitan Y.P.U. Has Discussion

At the meeting of the Metropolitan Y.P.U., Leonard Cannon, adviser, led a discussion on the work of the society. Many interesting ideas were brought forward. Suggested activities included moving pictures, go-and-see trips, sport nights for badminton, bowling, or skating, entertainment for members of the services and holiday hikes.

Prior to the open forum a worship service, singing and a business meeting were held. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse conducted the devotional period, during which he spoke on the story of the "Talents."

Bob Henson sang three solos, accompanied by Amy Anderson. A sing-song was led by Kenneth Priestley.

Bernard Laity outlined plans for a members' monthly bulletin and invitation cards in connection with the membership drive. Clifford Batstone of the Lower Island Union, spoke on the leadership training school. A letter was read from a former member of the society now serving in Tobruk.

Forty members and twelve guests attended. It is hoped to increase this number at the meeting to be held Tuesday, September 30, when an interesting surprise program has been arranged.

Metchoshin Hostess Club

The Metchoshin Hostess Club held a successful dance on Friday, entertaining many soldiers and sailors from the surrounding forts. The members of the club attractively decorated the hall in streamers of blue and gold, the club's colors. The 5th B.C. Coast Brigade orchestra supplied the music, through the kind permission of Lt.-Col. V. McKenna. Sgt. Doug Nelson was master of ceremonies.

The following members had charge of the duties: Misses Ruth Churchill and Gwen Ellwood, refreshments; Mrs. Rothe, Agnes Bierman and Fairy Welch, decorations; Miss Ruth Beckingham, tickets; Misses Agnes Bierman and Ruth Churchill, advertising; Misses Beth Ellwood, Agnes Bierman, Joy Osborne and Cecelia Milne, purchasing; Misses Norma Mutter, Rosamond Milne, Sonia Everest and Gwen Ellwood form the introduction committee.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Milne prepared the refreshments and Harold Welch and Jim Georgeson took charge of the pop stand.

The Hostess Club will hold a concert and dance on October 31 to entertain the forces.

102 YEARS OLD Saturday, Mrs. Ann Duke will celebrate her birthday quietly at her home, 495 Dupplin Road. She was born on a farm near St. Thomas, Ont., and after her marriage moved with her husband to Albert Head, where they lived for over 40 years. Although her eyesight has failed she takes a keen interest in affairs of the day. She will be "at home" to her friends Saturday.

A quick, sure way to give MACARONI a rich flavour

THE family—and the menfolk in particular—will eat up your macaroni dishes to the last spoonful if you will avoid any flat taste by adding a rich sauce. Thousands of women are doing this, and they are saving money because this whole-some food is inexpensive. The one sauce to use is H. P., that fine old English sauce known as the Empire's appetizer. This thick, fruity sauce suits Canadian tastes and Canadian dishes. You use it sparingly because it is concentrated. Try it for a week or two and you will get wonderful improvement in the flavour of your favourite foods. H. P. Europe's Plight Is Challenge to All Christians

The struggle of many millions who, although suffering tortures under Nazi domination are fighting with tenacious courage, should be an incentive to all Christian peoples to make an all-out effort to win the war. This was the challenge by Mme. le Generale Taufflieb last night in a moving and impassioned address to an enthusiastic audience in St. Mary's Hall. The gathering was held under the auspices of the Oak Bay Red Cross unit, and the speaker paid tribute to the great humanitarian work accomplished by the Red Cross during the last war and during the present titanic conflict.

HONORED FOR SERVICES

Brig.-General Austin introduced the speaker, who had been awarded the Croix de Guerre, Knight of the Legion of Honor, and the gold medal of France, and the Order of St. John of Jerusalem for her work in the last war. A resident of France for many years, she worked among the French soldiers until its collapse, finally escaping into Spain.

After describing her own experiences in those unhappy days Mme. Taufflieb gave a moving picture of the plight of the hordes of refugees who fled from northern France and among whom she worked. These were followed later by millions of Belgians, Netherlands and Luxembourgers, among whom the American Red Cross workers worked with heroic calm and efficiency, the speaker noted.

Since her escape from Europe, Mme. Taufflieb has been living in Santa Barbara, California, caring for refugee friends from the stricken countries. She cited the case of Mme. Chapowska, wife of the former Polish ambassador to France, who has been her guest in California for many months.

POLISH WOMAN'S ORDEAL

Mme. Chapowska was led out before a German firing squad, denied her last wishes, and having chosen to face death with her eyes open, heard the command to shoot. The officer in charge had laughingly told her it was "just a joke" and she had been sent back to prison.

When Mme. Chapowska escaped from Poland, she went on foot 400 kilometres, walking by night and hiding in the forests by day. Finally she arrived in Italy and from there came to America, where Mme. Taufflieb continued, "she lives as an example to all women of what courage can do."

Declaring that apathy is as great a danger as Nazism, the speaker said that everyone must make an all-out effort and be prepared to make any sacrifice and "when the war is won we will thank God who gave us Britain and victory."

Capt. F. G. Dexter, president of the Oak Bay unit, thanked the speaker on behalf of the audience. Reeve W. L. Woodhouse, on behalf of the municipality, took occasion to thank the unit for its splendid work. Mrs. F. E. Blowers contributed pianoforte solos, and Mrs. C. C. Raven had charge of the tickets.

Mrs. Hanvey and her daughter, Miss Gretta Hanvey, of Berkeley, California, after spending the last week in Victoria, left this morning by motor for their home in the south. Mrs. Hanvey visits Victoria every few years to renew acquaintances, having been educated at The Angela College here.

Mrs. R. R. Meyer of Kansas City and her companion, Mrs. A. H. Nelson, left today for their home in Kansas City after being guests in Victoria since the first of June, resident in Major Cuthbert Holmes' house on Newport Avenue.

Miss Delphine Ferrier and Miss Ethel Brandel, who are to be married in the near future, were honored with their fellow employees of the lunch counter and kitchen staff entertained at a double shower recently in the girls' sitting-room at the F. W. Woolworth store. The room was prettily decorated with fall flowers, the gifts were presented in baskets representing full-skirted brides. The brides-to-be were escorted to the places of honor by Miss Mary McDonald, acting as flower girl, while the wedding march was played on mock instruments. Winners of the games were Miss Florence Foubister and Miss Vera Sullivan. Refreshments were served, the table being centred with an ice cream cake, donated by the Palm Dairies. Those present were Mrs. Spurrier, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Pugh and Misses M. Hossburn, M. McConnochy, M. McDonald, G. McLeod, B. West, F. Foubister, B. Sullivan, E. Roe, M. Olsen, H. Barnes, H. Plan War-time Fashion Show

Plans for a Wartime Budget Fashion Show, to be held at the Crystal Garden Hall Wednesday evening, October 29, were completed at a special executive meeting of the Soroptimist Club held Friday night at the home of the vice-president, Miss Doris Holmes, Harrison Street.

Rules for the contest, which is to be in aid of the society's War Charities Fund, were drawn up and approved. While the contest is primarily designed for business women, any girl is invited to compete. Rules will be found in detail on registration forms which, after Wednesday next, may be secured from Victor Mott, Fashion Expert, 620 Trowell Alley, Broad Street. Mr. Mott and Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn have consented to act as two of the judges.

Members of the Soroptimist Club will also have copies of the rules, which show three classes, in any or all of which competitors may enter. There will be three good prizes in each class, and a grand cash prize of $10 for the winner of highest marks in all three classes.

The idea of the contest is to demonstrate that it is possible even on a wartime budget to dress becomingly and well on a small income, and an interesting feature of the program will be a talk by Victor Mott on "How to Dress Well on a Wartime Budget."

Clothes worn by competitors need not be new. Only in Group 2 will shoes, hat and accessories be included in the price limit. Following is a brief synopsis of the points on which judging will be based:

Group 1: Office dress—Dress suitable for business, stressing changes of accessories for variations from day to day, price not to exceed $15.

Group 2: Street costume—Topcoat or suit, with shoes, hat and other accessories, price not to exceed $45; judged on suitability to wear as to line, texture, color; and suitability of accessories.

Group 3: Evening dress—Stressing a gown that could be worn on varied occasions such as formal dinner, informal evening or fairly formal occasion; price not to exceed $20; judged as to suitability to wear in respect of color, line, texture, suitability to different occasions; hair arrangement counts.

Nursing Sisters Will Hold Tea to Aid Overseas Work

The Victoria Unit of the Overseas Nursing Sisters' Association will hold a tea and sale in aid of war charities in the Nurses' Home of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Wednesday, October 15 at 3.

Soon after the outbreak of war the Victoria unit of this Canadian-wide organization, all of whose members saw active service on the various fronts of the last war, decided to become active and do what they could to further Canada's war effort. The first achievement was that of making personal property bags for the members of the 1st Battalion of the Princess Pats before they left for overseas. Since then the military hospital at Work Point Barracks has been constantly supplied with many comforts, magazines, flowers, playing cards, ash trays, etc. Comfortable chairs and several clocks have been given. At Christmas-time trees were decorated and Christmas gifts provided for all patients in the hospital.

In the market building a workroom has been lent by the City Council for the duration of the war. Here the members made dressings and padded splints. Now articles are being made for the Red Cross layettes for overseas. Baby clothes, quilts, etc., are made for bombed-out victims of the war.

Another workroom in the Central Building, under the Red Cross, is run by members of the unit, where supplies are made for the local military and naval hospitals—such as operating-room linen, etc., besides many supplies for the wards.

From time to time sums of money have been sent to Britain to the Lord Mayor's Fund, and the fund for bombed-out civilian nurses.

The sisters also donated and keep stocked a medicine cabinet at the Three Services Club, where several members give voluntary help—one in the canteen, others bed-making.

This tea and sale is being held to raise funds in order to "carry on," and the unit hopes for a generous response from the public.

RAY'S LTD. COMPLETING FIVE YEARS OF SERVICE TO VICTORIANS

GREETINGS FROM THE STAFF

Reading from left to right—Seated front row: Helen Todd (cashier), Gloria Giffin (fruit), Eileen Richards (remedies), Flossie Driver (packaging), Lee Webster (candy), Evelyn Alexander (cashier), Joyce Girdler (grocery). Second row: Bill King (meat), Freda Ball (grocery), Peggy Harper (cutter), Bill Cumming (General Manager, Vancouver), Len Tupman (Store Manager), Johnnie Wightman (Manager, meat department), Jean Osgood (dried fruit), Les Davies (delicatessen), Pat Wightman (office), Reg Driver (Manager, remedies department). Back row: Bob Wilkes (fruit), Len Stapleton (meat), Leslie Guy (bacon), Rudy Sigrist (grocery), Ernie Crockford (floor manager), Happy Flower (meat), Andy Buchan (Manager, fish department), Fred Meads (meat), Ron Webber (stockroom).

Exactly Five years ago RAY'S LIMITED inaugurated a policy of "quality merchandise at prices that all can afford." The continued success of the Company in Victoria, is sufficient indication that this policy has proved acceptable to the buying public. Every sale made by RAY'S LIMITED must give satisfaction, and Victorians are assured that the original policy will at all times be strictly adhered to.

Many of the loyal staff pictured above were present at the opening of this store, and the Company prides itself on the fact that all employees are British Subjects, and all residents of Victoria.

The staff in turn take a particular interest in the stores customers, and a "customer first" attitude has been responsible for much of the success enjoyed by the store. There is a "homey" atmosphere in RAY'S to which customers readily respond, and "satisfaction with every purchase" is an established precedent.

The store also features B.C. Products whenever possible. Goods grown and packed in British Columbia are always given preference, thus supporting B.C. Labor, contributing to B.C. Payrolls, and the betterment of conditions in the Province as a whole. Everyone is desirous of supporting their "Home" Province and RAY'S LIMITED is no exception. When you shop at RAY'S, a large percentage of your purchases will be assisting to build British Columbia payrolls.

RAY'S LIMITED was established as a Cash and Carry store, and for the convenience of shoppers a delivery service was inaugurated on orders selected in the store. This economical method of operation has enabled the store to maintain its policy of Quality Merchandise and fair prices, and the "customer first" attitude explains why Victorians are unanimous in saying "I like to shop at RAY'S."

Mud Can't Quench These Women Navvies' Faith in Victory

No job that needs doing is too hard for women to tackle in Britain these days, with the prospect that the men in the forces may be sent in the not-too-distant future into Norway, the Mediterranean or the Caucasus. At this new airdrome under construction somewhere in East Anglia, the "pick and shovel brigade" consists of 100 women and girls who cheerfully tackle the work of navvies. In the picture at left they are laying drainage pipes along the sides of the runways; at the right, they cement pipes.

R.A.F. Pilot Ascribes Victories Which Won Him D.F.C. to 'Teamwork'

Seven Nazi aircraft have been chalked up to Sergeant Tommy Rigler, designated by the arrow in this group of R.A.F. pilots, who considers himself a Canadian because he lived in Toronto from the age of two. One day he shot down three Messerschmitt 109E's within an hour. He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal. Eighty-two sorties have been made by Sergeant Rigler since last March, according to the communiqué citing his decoration.

At right he describes a battle in which he got a Nazi and one possible.

Hurricane's Last Kick Wreaks Havoc Across Ontario

Toronto's lake front bore the brunt of the damage on September 25, when the tail end of the recent Texas hurricane ripped its way across western Ontario. One of the most heartbreaking sights for boat owners was the line-up of boats alongside docks smashed and pounded hours on end by the merciless waves. Here are some of the craft at the Don rowing club as the waves ground them to driftwood. The windstorm was one of the most violent in Ontario's history. Property loss is likely to soar into hundreds of thousands when the full toll is counted.

By PETE SALLAWAY

BASEBALL comes into its own tomorrow. It will mark the opening of the world series between the swashbuckling New York Yankees and those not-so-daffy Dodgers from Brooklyn. The "nickel series" promises more color and action than witnessed in the fall classic in years. Brooklyn, pennant hungry after 21 years, can't see anything but a victory for its beloved Dodgers while the rabid Gotham fans are just as certain Joe DiMaggio and company will club their way to the heights.

World series makes baseball fans out of mother, dad and the whole dang family. Housewives will be neglecting the morning dishes and beds to listen in to all the color and fanfare that marks the radio description. Dad will be hurrying out at lunch time to the nearest cigar stand to listen in while Junior will make it home in nothing flat for his lunch to grab a couple of innings before returning to studies. In the evenings the family argument will get away from the usual run of talk to discussion on the ball game.

But what about the two clubs that will battle it out over a best-of-seven series? The present-day Yankees are certainly not the powerhouse they were in 1927 and 1928. They have some great hitters, but the batting order is not liable to explode like those famous clubs of a few years ago. They were not even the leading hitting club in the American League this season. But the Yanks have pitching this year. They have no less than eight pitchers who are a good bet to finish any game they start. Count them, Gomez, Ruffing, Chandler, Donald, Bruer, Russo, Bonham and Branch. In addition they have the greatest relief hurler in baseball, Johnny Murphy. That staff will be tough to beat.

Then there is the old baseball saying that a baseball club's strength is through the middle—from catcher to centrefield. Judging the Yanks that way they would stack up as a great team.

Regina, Bomber Stars Top League

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rangy Art Stevenson, versatile Winnipeg Blue Bomber halfback, and 265-pound Toar Springstein, Regina Roughriders' lineman, are tied for the individual scoring leadership in the Western Interprovincial Football Union with 15 points each.

Stevenson, former Nebraska star and veteran of four years with Bombers, has scored three touchdowns, Springstein, who graduated from Regina Junior Dales two years ago, has kicked four field goals and converted three touchdowns from placement.

Next to the leaders is Charlie March, rookie Regina backfielder who has scored two touchdowns.

Leaders follow:

	T	FG	S	C	Pts.
Stevenson (W)	3	0	0	0	15
Springstein (R)	0	4	0	3	15
March (R)	0	0	0	0	10
Charlton (R)	1	0	2	0	7
Kabat (V)	0	1	0	0	6
McCance (W)	0	0	5	5	5
Horn (V)	1	0	0	0	5
Powell (R)	1	0	0	0	5
Preston (W)	1	0	0	0	5
McFadden (W)	1	0	0	0	5
Bleher (W)	1	0	0	0	5
Molnar (R)	1	0	0	0	5
Hanson (W)	1	0	0	0	5

(Note: T—touchdown, 5 points; FG—field goal, 3 points; S—single, 1 point; C—convert, 1 point.)

Tulsa Will Get Coast Hockeyists

TULSA (AP)—Merger of the Tulsa and Vancouver hockey clubs was announced last night by George Lackey, president of Tulsa Oilers of the American Hockey Association.

In the agreement, Guy Patrick will bring his Vancouver squad to Tulsa and will take over as Tulsa coach and manager. Lackey remains as majority stockholder and president of the Tulsa club.

Patrick plans to bring about 10 players from Vancouver and perhaps as many more from Portland, Seattle and Spokane clubs of the Coast League, which has shut down for the season.

Tulsa will begin training at Winnipeg October 15. Patrick's Vancouver teams have won the Pacific Coast championship seven of the last 11 years.

Bill Dickey has played this season in the form that ranks him with the greatest. At shortstop the New Yorkers have Phil Rizzuto and Joe Gordon. Aged Connie Mack declares they are the best keystone combination now playing. In centrefield is Joe DiMaggio, admittedly the greatest all-around ball player in the business.

Now for the Dodgers. Brooklyn also boasts some classy mound material. Kirby Higby, Whit Wyatt, Curt Davis, Hugh Casey, Freddy Fitzsimmons and Luke Hamlin are going to provide the Yanks with loads of trouble. The first three named are capable of taking on the pitching chores for the entire series if they are right.

Behind the plate the Dodgers will have either Owen or Franks. They are shaded by the Yanks in this department and also around second base. Bill Herman has slipped from his best form while Pee-wee Reese is inclined to be jittery afield. The Dodgers have a great rookie in centrefield in Pete Reiser but in the all-star game he was tense and nervous and looked bad in the field. He cannot be compared with DiMag.

But it must not be forgotten the Dodgers have a lot of power concentrated in first baseman, Dolf Camilli and outfielder Joe Medwick. In the closing month Medwick really hit his stride. He and Camilli are boys who have broken up a lot of ball games in Brooklyn's favor. It is just a question as to whether or not the Yankee hurlers will be able to stop them. Result of the series may hinge a lot on the answer.

From this corner we like the Yankees in about five or six games. The New Yorkers have the edge in pitching. They can start with Ruffing and Gomez and still have six crack youngsters to call on. Last year Cincinnati won because they had two reliable pitchers to Detroit's one. Walters and Derringer could alternate but Detroit couldn't work Newsom every day. But don't ever count those Dodgers out of it.

Mrs. E. Jackson City Golf Leader

Posting a five over par 81 Mrs. E. Jackson headed the field at the end of the first 18 holes of the women's city golf championship at the Uplands Club yesterday. Second round of the 36-hole medal test was being played today.

Playing over her home links, Mrs. Jackson was out in 42, three strokes over par and back in 39, two over. The Uplands veteran threw away her chances for a much better card by three-putting on the 15th and 17th greens.

In the runner-up position with an 83 was Mrs. Art Dowell, Colwood, 1939 champion, and former B.C. titleholder. Just one stroke more was Miss Mary Young, Uplands, while Miss Peggy Hodgson, Colwood, and Miss Mary Mackenzie-Grieve, Uplands, at two-time holder of the city crown, shared fourth place, each with an 85. Mrs. Harry Mearns was in the 86 bracket.

The championship attracted a field of 39. The title was left open when Miss Margaret Sutcliffe, Oak Bay, was unable to enter.

Major Ice Openers November 1

Rangers at Toronto

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League will open its third season of wartime hockey November 1, with four of the seven teams listed for action that night to start their 48-game 4½-month schedule, released today by President Frank Calder.

Indications were the teams would start the long grind practically at full strength, although passport regulations covering married men of military age might cut somewhat into the strength of the squads.

Both of the starting assignments are set for Canadian ice, with Detroit taking on Canadiens in Montreal and Rangers clashing with the Maple Leafs in Toronto. Americans make their initial appearance in Detroit November 2, then travel to Chicago for the Black Hawks' opener November 6. Boston's Stanley Cup holders will be the last to see action when they invade Toronto November 8.

New York fans won't see any home action until November 13, when Americans entertain Chicago, while Rangers make their home debut against the Hub City entry November 15. The first glimpse Boston fans will get of their champions will be November 18 against the Americans.

World Series Opening

Wyatt, Ruffing Pitch

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees are set for tomorrow's opening game of the World Series, with Whitlow Wyatt, the bald Georgian, ready to take the mound against Charley (Red) Ruffing, veteran ace of the Yanks.

The managers of the two pennant-winners delayed announcing definitely their starting choices until after the teams had worked out again today, and Leo Durocher of the Dodgers said he might not select his first finger until tomorrow, but from players of the competing clubs it was learned Ruffing and Wyatt, the obvious choices, had been instructed to get ready to pitch the first game.

Wyatt, who became 32 last Saturday, won 22 games and lost 10 for the Dodgers during their National League struggle, and pitched most of their critical contests, including that which clinched the pennant last Thursday at Boston.

An American League castoff, he was one of the outstanding hurlers of the entire season. His prestige is such he may make the Dodgers an even-money shot to win the initial game tomorrow at Yankee Stadium.

This will be Wyatt's first World Series, but Ruffing, big 36-year-old right-handed ace of the American League champions, has pitched in seven series games, winning five and being charged with one defeat. He bagged only 15 games this season, but was not used nearly as often as Wyatt.

Dynamite-packed Right Finishes Nova in Sixth

Louis Finds No Trouble; To Join Army

NEW YORK (CP)—Simple Joe Louis was out of the woods today, past the mystic Yogi man who'd been threatening him, and well on his way to becoming a private in the United States army at a salary of $21 a month.

The Yogi disciple, chesty and tangle-footed Lou Nova of Alameda, Calif., lasted six dreary rounds against Louis last night in the Polo Grounds before he was carried to his corner, a fallen giant who talked a better right than he took with him into the ring.

The negro champion applied a smashing right to Nova's jaw late in the sixth round and that's about all there was to the spiritless proceedings. Nova, whose jaw was reputedly made of concrete or iron, went down like so many others have fallen under a Louis blow. He got up at the count of nine, took a terrible beating for a few seconds and was taken to his corner when Referee Arthur Donovan awarded Louis the victory on a technical knockout.

Instead of being the spectacular battle expected by many a veteran fight critic, Joe's 19th defence of his heavyweight title was a routine performance by the negro champion. Nova gave him virtually no trouble, started no dramatics. If the challenger threw in the odd "dynamic stance" it passed unnoticed. His cosmic, or comic punch, left no bruises or cuts on Joe.

A capacity crowd of 56,540 contributed to a gate of $583,771, of which Louis gets about $250,000 and Nova $90,000. The champion's total ring earnings soared above $2,500,000 for six or so years of fighting.

Next month Joe answers the call of his army draft board and is ready to be inducted into the army for training.

The time last night was 2 minutes and 59 seconds of the sixth and not long afterward Nova was telling reporters in his dressing room: "You know, if Joe retires I think I'll claim the title."

Louis merely said that "Lou ain't the fighter Billy Conn was."

That summed it up for all the thousands of fans who saw Louis knock out Conn in a spectacular 13-round battle in the Polo Grounds last June and then sat on last night's drab contest. Conn, outweighed 25 pounds, gave the champion a good struggle. Nova, a quarter pound heavier than Louis at 202½, did hardly any fighting at all.

STALKS OPPONENT

For five rounds, Louis just shuffled in and stalked his opponent. There was one brief moment in the fourth round when Joe had his fireworks popping and Nova's knees sagged. But that quieted down, and it was obvious Joe was intent on just one thing—throwing and landing the Sunday punch, the one big one that he was confident would lower Lou.

Finally, the occasion came. Midway of the sixth round, Nova made the mistake of lowering his long left just a trifle, and the greatest puncher the ring has ever seen wound up that high hard one and pitched. Nova went down as if he had been hit by a locomotive.

He lay there against the ropes, then pulled himself up at the count of nine, badly hurt. Joe charged in for the kill. He threw everything into every punch and chased the staggering Nova from rope to rope.

A lightning left hook tore open Nova's right eye. Blood streamed down as he fell back against the ropes in a neutral corner, his hands lowered. Joe, on top of him, was about to let go a blow that might have done him real damage. Then Donovan stepped in and called a halt, a moment before the bell sounded to end the round.

Thus the bomber, reverting to the one-punch-to-wreck-'em tactics he employed against rock-like Paulino Uzcudun in 1935, turned back the challenge that was regarded as the greatest, the strongest and the most determined he ever has been called on to face in building up the longest string of successful title defenses in ring history.

'Forgot to Duck' Declares Nova

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—"I forgot to duck... that's what happens to you when you forget to do that important thing. I was waiting to get in my sock and he got his in first."

Through puffed and bruised lips, Lou Nova made this explanation of his crashing six-round defeat by champion Joe Louis last night. Nova sat on a rubbing table in his dressing-room answering a flood of questions about the right that Louis crashed against his jaw.

He said he never had been hit a harder punch, and across the hall Louis said he himself had never thrown a harder one, not even against Paulino Uzcudun.

"He is the champ, believe me," said Nova.

"After I got on my feet I felt I was all right but those punches were coming too fast and from all directions."

The challenger, short with his rights in the early rounds, actually thought he was winning or at least that the battle was close until he was clipped. He kept asking his questioners if they didn't agree with him. Then suddenly he blurted out:

"If I could get another shot at him, I think I could take him. I learned a big lesson. The next time I won't forget to duck."

NO SUCKER
Nova said that Louis was a harder man to hit with a right hand than he had figured and that Joe certainly was no sucker. "He's a great fighter," Nova kept repeating. "He's a true champion."

Nova approved of the action of referee Arthur Donovan in stopping the fight.

"If Louis had been in the same fix I was in, I think Donovan would have stopped it just the same," he said.

Louis, unruffled and unmarked, was more interested in talking about the world series than the fight, although he did come up with the idea that Nova's comic punch was just a fairy tale.

"I knew I had him when he began doing those funny exercises with his arms," said Joe, adding that the fight was just the kind he wanted.

"I saw the opening in the fifth round but missed," said Joe. "He gave it to me again in the sixth when he fiddled around and I let go. I don't think I ever threw a harder punch."

Louis said he went to sleep in one of the early rounds when Lou caught him with a long, awkward left but it didn't hurt. "As for fighters, I would take Conn any day," the champ declared.

Archduke Otto To Speak Here

ARCHDUKE OTTO

Francis Joseph Otto, Archduke of Austria, who has made Canada his home since he arrived from Europe in July of last year, is expected in Victoria Wednesday on a speaking tour.

He will address the Canadian Institute of International Affairs Wednesday evening, and on Thursday will speak before the Rotary Club.

The Archduke, who commenced his tour at Toronto, the seat of the Free Austrian movement under leadership of Hans Rott, has visited key points in the west, carrying a message of hope for the European peoples subjugated to Nazi rule.

The Europeans held under the yoke of the Axis are becoming bolder, and open revolt to Nazi tyranny may be expected to increase as the Royal Air Force strikes harder at the enemy-occupied countries and Soviet Russia continues her determined stand against the German invader, says the Archduke. Not more than 4 per cent of the people of Austria are supporters of the Nazi regime, he asserts. Actually, the majority of this small group is morally against Nazi rule, giving support only for material gain.

The situation in Austria, the Archduke is convinced, speaks for other occupied countries as well. In Hungary there appears to be a shade more freedom, because the people are still enjoying a "Vichy-like" government, he says. Archduke Otto, who is 28 years old, moved to Belgium in 1930. On the first day of the German invasion of that country the Archduke's castle was bombed, and he and the members of his family fled across the border to France. He remained there until after the French armistice, and escaped to Spain, believing he was on Hitler's list for arrest. The Archduke crossed the Atlantic in July, 1940, and has since been active in promoting the Free Austrian movement.

Hamber Honored In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Only resident of the city ever to win the honor, Eric Werger Hamber, recently-retired Lieutenant Governor, yesterday was made the sixth freeman of the City of Vancouver.

Other freemen are Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, Sir Percy Vincent, who visited here in 1936 while Lord Mayor of London, Lord Bennett, Sir Edward Beatty, and the late A. A. Hamilton, last member of Vancouver's first city council, who died near Toronto early this year.

Mr. Hamber, wearing morning dress, and Mrs. Hamber, were greeted by Mayor J. W. Cornett, clad in the robes of his office. His Worship, attended by Sergeant-at-Arms Alex McKay, carrying the city's gold mace, led the couple to the mayor's dais, where they were seated on either side of the mayor.

"You have been made a Freeman of the city for your distinguished national service," Mayor Cornett said. "You are retiring from the Lieutenant Governorship with the good will of every citizen of the province, all of whom have admired the conscientious and able manner in which you have carried out the exacting duties of that office."

Mr. Hamber, in replying, said his freemanship entitled him to run for the office of mayor, but he assured council he had no aspirations in that direction.

Police rendered first aid to Don Mow, 564 Fisgard Street, an elderly Chinese, who fell and cut his face on Fisgard Street Monday afternoon.

Need Canvassers For War Savings

Urgent need for canvassers to help canvass the 500 city business firms for increased war savings was stressed at a meeting of the payroll division of the Victoria War Savings Committee at Terry's Cafe Monday evening.

F. E. Winslow, chairman of the Island War Savings Committee, outlined the importance of the campaign, which starts Wednesday and calls for enough money to be saved in this city to buy two tanks every month. T. C. Rogers, chairman of the payroll division, said there was a great need for more canvassers to put the drive over in the city's business houses by showing to employers and employees the urgent need for the money.

Seventeen canvassers have volunteered, but to have the job done efficiently 50 would be needed. He requested those willing to work to either phone or call at the War Savings Office on Government Street.

Mr. Rogers said today the quota of the payroll division in the two-tanks-a-month drive was 60 per cent of the total amount needed to purchase the tanks. At present this source is contributing only 17 per cent. He attributed the poor showing to lack of canvassers to systematically approach every firm in town and ask employers and employees to co-operate in contributing to their fullest extent.

Mr. Winslow said a meeting of all employers of labor in Victoria would be held October 9. Citizens will give them a thorough understanding of the need for greater war savings and ask them to co-operate in arranging to have their employees sign pledges to save fixed weekly or monthly amounts in war savings certificates.

Progress Pleases Air Officials

That the development of the airport and training centre at Patricia Bay has been nothing less than phenomenal is the opinion of Air Vice-Marshal Lloyd S. Broadner, chief of air staff of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"I tramped over the ground at Patricia Bay before it was bought for an air base," the vice-marshal said Monday night, "and the development is phenomenal. It will be a station which will do valiant service to the island."

Present with the vice-marshal was S. L. DeCarteret, Deputy Minister of National Defence for Air. He commented on the difficulty of locating airdromes on the coast and said that Patricia Bay was not only a fine sight for an airport but also for a seaplane base.

"We are certainly pleased with the way things are going," said Vice-Marshal Broadner when questioned on the progress being made by the air-training schemes. "Schools are being opened eight months ahead of time and air crews are being sent abroad earlier than was planned."

Deputy Minister DeCarteret added that production was now coming into full force.

On being questioned of possible co-operation between the United States and Canada the air vice-marshal said, "America is on our side and if there is anything we have that they can use, they will state their situation and we will provide for them."

The vice-marshal said that the terrain had limited the progress made in the west. "It is probably the worst place in Canada," he said.

In the unemployable category, receiving aid were 8,758 persons, of whom 1,662 were heads of families, 3,185 dependents and 3,911 single persons.

The total relief list was 17,116, by comparison with 34,144 a year ago.

'All-out Effort Needs New System'—MacNeil

Canada, says Grant MacNeil, national C.C.F. organizer, is not organized for an all-out war effort because of the tender consideration shown by its governments for private property—a contrast to the way in which they deal with human lives.

Mr. MacNeil made the major speech Monday at the opening of the party's provincial election campaign here at the A.O.F. Hall. "Are we fully deserving of the magnificent heroism shown by the men in our fighting forces?" he asked. "Are our affairs at home organized with the same unselfish disregard for private interests as our fighting men? I say it is to our shame that they are not yet. Until they are our men will be betrayed."

Mr. MacNeil said the voters had something vital at stake in the coming election, even though it was just a provincial contest. They had a definite choice to make, a choice indicating which way they wanted things to go in the future.

"Public opinion can do it," he said. "Public opinion swept away an incompetent government and saved Britain in her hour of peril."

CHOICE TO BE MADE

"It has been properly said we are in the midst of a great world revolution. But we cannot expect to turn back the pages of history when it is over. It would be suicidal to go back to the old piecemeal, planless system of private enterprise for profit. That is the choice we can show."

Mr. MacNeil said Canada had not learned the lesson of Britain. Nine out of the 10 industrial strikes in Canada were over the question of union recognition, a right that was granted workmen of Britain and all other Dominions without any dispute. In its hour of greatest danger Britain made labor a partner in the national effort. It extended social services because it realized the security they granted was essential to total war.

Mr. MacNeil said the Canadian government was becoming totalitarian in its demands, but not in its benefits. All thinking people now recognized that many measures of state control and state direction were inevitable for the future. The question to be decided was who should have that control. Should it be those who insisted on property rights for private property or the C.C.F. who planned for human needs and the general security of all in the nation?

The speaker rapped the government's method of dealing with the wartime housing emergency which he said was of benefit to private contractors rather than a long-range plan. He insisted that post-war planning must be done now and embodied in legislation because "people have not forgotten that the promises made last war were broken."

CANDIDATES HEARD

The three Victoria candidates and Geoffrey LeGallais, Oak Bay candidate, addressed the meeting of 150 people, under chairmanship of H. G. Wyatt.

Mrs. Clare McAllister decried lack of accommodation in the Boys' Industrial Home, the Home for the deaf and blind, and in the mental hospitals, declaring

C.C.F. members in the Legislature had been repeatedly pressing for improvement.

She vigorously attacked P.C. 7440 — the cost-of-living bonus order—saying Ottawa had made only ineffective gestures to bring down prices, while bonuses had been given to comparatively few.

She charged that in Victoria men working behind barbed-wire fences, under soldiers' guard, because they were preparing to build warships, were ruled as being not eligible for the bonus because it was a private contract, and the fair-wages policy of the Dominion did not apply. And that, she said, when cost of living in Victoria had gone up 20 per cent.

H. O. Simpson said the one issue of the campaign was whether people wished to continue the conditions under which they had suffered for years, through depression and out of it, or adopt the progressive leadership the C.C.F. could give.

He agreed that state control was already under way, but insisted that those in charge could never give the security under capitalism that the C.C.F. would provide by planning for human needs.

W. B. Caird said that a revolution had also taken place in Germany and because the wrong people got control the world had its present situation.

"The important thing about a revolution is the people who are guiding it," he declared. Mr. Caird said the C.C.F. wanted to plan now for the post-war period rather than to wait for the event like other governments would do. About the only preparation he had noticed was a report from a police chiefs' convention that the police would have to get ready for internal troubles after the war.

"What we really need is a planned economy that will give every man a proper livelihood," he said.

SAW IT COMING

Mr. LeGallais said the socialists were the only group which had sincerely fought the rise of Fascism and told the world what it would mean. Those in Canada had warned the Canadian government repeatedly, without success. And even now, two years after war started, Canada had not organized 100 per cent to fight the battle.

"We cannot expect an all-out war effort until profit is taken out of war industries," he said. "I am convinced that only under an entirely new system with a policy of equality of sacrifice will the war be won, and the ensuing peace will only be maintained by a policy promoting the welfare of the whole people. The C.C.F. alone offers that system and those policies."

Canada Newsmen

Meet Churchill

LONDON (CP)—Canadian newspaper representatives met Prime Minister Churchill today and found him the man they expected, complete with famous cigar, bristling brows and beaming confidence.

The dozen visiting journalists met Britain's great wartime leader in the historic Prime Minister's room of the bomb-battered Houses of Parliament after listening in rapt attention to his buoyant war review.

They shook hands with the Prime Minister, chatted—many saying "God bless you."

It was the largest journalistic gathering the Prime Minister had received since taking office and the visitors had a privilege not enjoyed even by veteran British correspondents.

"Sorry to keep you gentlemen waiting," said the Prime Minister as he arrived.

Canon J. A. Chamberland of Quebec, one of the first to meet the Prime Minister, addressed him in French, bringing greetings from French Canada, and Mr. Churchill replied, speaking first in English, "Thank you very much," and then in French.

"They particularly wanted to see you, Mr. Prime Minister," said Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, when the handshaking was over.

"They want to see all the ruins," Mr. Churchill quipped.

"You signify courage and devotion," Canon Chamberland told the Prime Minister.

"Well, we're a united country," he returned.

Middle East Oil

Will Be Important

"The oil fields of Iran, Iraq and the Persian Gulf are taking an important place in the war and will become of greater importance in the future," stated A. O. Butters when he spoke to the Gyr club yesterday on "The Oil Supply of the Middle East."

Mr. Butters said that the oil fields of these areas produced a total of 16,000,000 tons a year and that German attempts at putting pro-Nazi governments in Iraq and Iran were merely to deny the British use of the Middle East supply. He added that the Germans could not use the oil for their own purposes because the only way of taking it out was by sea and the British navy would prevent that.

The speaker discussed the German-Russian war, saying that, in his opinion, the Nazi attack upon Russia was planned several years ago. He expressed surprise, however, that the Germans attacked the Communists along a front that stretched from the Arctic Sea to the Black Sea. He pointed out that it would have been much more to their advantage to stage a concerted drive on the Ukraine, where most of Russia's heavy industries were located, and then push through to the Caucasus Mountains. Mr. Butters stated that 30,000,000 tons of the Soviet's annual 35,000,000-ton production of oil came from these mountains.

CRAIGIE TO U.S.

Tokyo (AP)—British ambassador Sir Robert Craigie plans to leave Tokyo for Shanghai October 10 on his way to the United States for a three-month vacation.

Presumably he will confer with Alfred Duff Cooper, British war co-ordinator in the Far East, before leaving the Far East.

Sir Robert had planned to depart yesterday, but was said by a British embassy spokesman to have postponed the trip upon suggestions from London.

A two-ton duraluminum gate from New York's Triborough Bridge was a large item donated in the recent national drive to collect aluminum for defence.

MARTHA SCOTT

IN ROMANTIC HIT

Martha Scott, glowing star of "Our Town," "Cheers for Miss Bishop" and "The Howards of Virginia," makes her fourth appearance on the screen in Columbia's "They Dare Not Love," which opened today at the Dominion Theatre with George Brent co-starring. Romance of two heroic lovers whose hearts beat to the terrifying tempo of a world in upheaval, "They Dare Not Love" is a superbly told story of today, set against a background of daring drama, astounding action and startling suspense.

As young refugees, exiled from a continent in flames, Brent and Miss Scott appear to brilliant advantage in this breath-taking new story of a romance which would not be crushed by terror, which could not be destroyed by hate or divided by oceans.

New Stars in Hardy Feature

Each picture in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's popular Hardy Family series has brought to light a new star on the Hollywood horizon, and "Life Begins for Andy Hardy" opening tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre, goes that record one better. Two newcomers are introduced in the latest film, both with star-studded prospects.

Patricia Dane, in her first important dramatic role, and Ray McDonald, appearing on the screen for the first time, are the new faces following Hollywood's best known path to fame. Miss Dane plays a New York woman who gets Andy in her clutches, and McDonald appears as a down-and-out hoover befriended by the Carvel youth.

Atlas to Show 'Pot o' Gold' Story

The behind-the-scenes story of the filming of "Pot O' Gold," James Roosevelt's, first Hollywood film, which starts a run at the Atlas Theatre tomorrow, starts with a winter night more than a year ago. James Roosevelt and a group of friends were sitting in the gay Cocanut Grove of the Ambassador Hotel in Hollywood listening to the music of Horace Heidt's band.

Co-starred in the gay romantic comedy, which features the melodious tunes and hi-jinks of the Heidt band, are James Stewart and Paulette Goddard with Charles Winninger, Mary Gordon and Jed Prouty in featured roles.

PLAZA THEATRE

Clive Brook and Diana Wynyard, currently co-starring at the Plaza Theatre in Columbia's "Wilhelmstrasse 110," appear together on the screen for the first time since their memorable "Cavalcade," the motion picture in which Miss Wynyard made her first triumphant screen appearance nine years ago.

OAK BAY THEATRE

Arthur Askey's latest and funniest starring role is in "The Ghost Train," at the Oak Bay Theatre. "The Ghost Train" is more than a first-rate comedy thriller. This film, a spectacular production demanding the shooting of many big scenes in the open air, was made almost entirely during that period when the daylight bombing blitz was at its worst.

YORK THEATRE

"Craig's Wife," co-starring Rosalind Russell and John Boles, is the 10th Pulitzer Prize play to reach the screen. Produced by Columbia under the direction of Dorothy Arzner, "Craig's Wife," showing today at the York Theatre, came originally from the pen of George Kelly. Mary C. McCall Jr. adapted it to the screen.

RIO THEATRE

The "Little Caesar of Gangland," Edward G. Robinson, who in the past has always portrayed the part of No. 1 man of the underworld, has turned over a new leaf, and in the picture, "I Am the Law," currently at the Rio Theatre, he plays the role of district attorney.

CADET THEATRE

Filmgoers of all ages can visit the Cadet Theatre this week confident that they will come away feeling happier, for Britain's No. 1 comedian, George Formby, is right at the top of his form in "Come on George," new Ealing production being released by A.B.F.D.

Elks Among Victims Of Russia's Wolves

Wolves do not have many friends among people. We very seldom hear about them being kept as "pets," and it is our custom to think of them as wild, ugly-natured beasts.

The wolves of Europe are strong and have coarse fur, which is mainly grey, though it commonly has a brownish or a yellowish tinge. In the open season they most often hunt singly or in pairs. They prey on rabbits, hedgehogs, birds, snakes, rats and field mice. Now and then they attack a herd of sheep, and may kill half a dozen or a dozen in a single night.

STALKING THE WHITE WOLF WITH THE AID OF A SEAL SCREEN.

In most countries of the mainland of Europe there are some wolves running about, but Russia is the land where they are found in greatest numbers. During the winter they form packs and slay elk and horned cattle. They are feared by travelers who pass over the lonely stretches between cities or villages.

Many stories have been told about people being set upon and killed by hungry wolves in Russia. It is hard to tell whether such stories are true, but it is known that the wolves of our continent usually are afraid of men. Most of them seem to have learned the danger from rifles.

The North American timber wolf is slightly larger than his European cousin. The fur commonly varies from grey to black, but sometimes is white or nearly white.

Travelers in Arctic regions may see wolves with fur as white as the snow. Donald MacMillan, the explorer, tells of watching an Eskimo with a "seal screen" shoot a white wolf which walked toward him.

Two travelers in Alaska were camping at a point above the Arctic Circle when they saw scores of large white wolves coming near. The wolves seemed to want to get at five musk oxen which were in the camp, alive. Raising their rifles, the men fired into the pack and brought down several of the wolves. The rest ran away, but came back shortly afterward for another attack. Again the men shot some of them and again the rest ran away.

The same story went on for two days and nights. Then, at last, the white wolves which had escaped the bullets gave up all attempts to reach the camp.

Although wolves seldom are tamed, they are closely related to the Eskimo dogs which serve as beasts of burden in the far north.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a single woman, 32 years of age, and have a niece of 18 who has a child born out of wedlock. I am torn between knowing whether to take this baby and go to another city, saying that the child is mine and that my husband is dead, or to pay for its care somewhere. My niece is not in a position to support the little one and will go insane if I cannot do something for her. I do not know whether she will ever be able to care for the child. Should I devote my life to the care of both of them? I do not think I will ever marry, and I have only a fair way of earning my living myself. Please tell me what to do. PERPLEXED.

Answer—In the first place, give up the foolish idea of going somewhere and changing your name and pretending you are a widow with a child. That kind of thing only works out in novels. In real life it is always a boomerang that destroys the idiot who thought she could put it across.

My earnest advice to you is to put the child where it will be taken care of and pay for its keep, while you go on with your regular life, living honestly in the sight of the world.

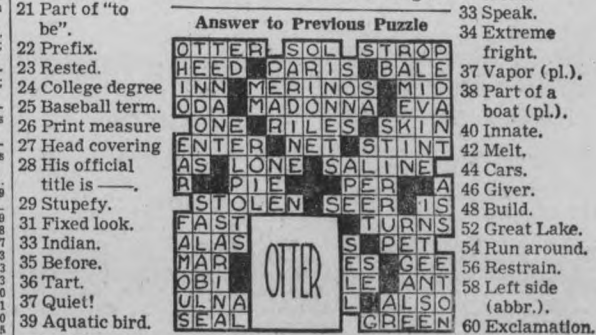

Make your niece go to work and learn some way of being self-supporting, and keep before her eyes all the time the fact that she is responsible for the baby, and that she must work hard so that she can take care of it herself. That is the only way you can save her. That is the only way you can build up her self-respect.

DOROTHY DIX.

Refrigerators Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States government ordered makers of household mechanical refrigerators today to cut production for the last five months of 1941 to a level of 43.2 per cent under average monthly output for the year which ended June 30, and warned cuts in 1942 "will probably be greater."

Grain Elevator Offered for Sale

The City Council yesterday afternoon renewed John Gillespie's lease on the Ogdon Point grain elevator, but made immediate preparations to advertise the plant for sale throughout Canada and appropriate parts of the United States.

Not entirely satisfied with Mr. Gillespie's terms, the council decided to exercise the proviso it attached to the lease which would permit cancellation of the agreement within three months of a bona-fide sale.

In the event of no sale, Mr. Gillespie will retain possession of the elevator for the year starting Wednesday, by guaranteeing the city 52½ per cent of the net profit on the plant, with a minimum of $17,500.

"I think you could get more. If you can't, then sell it," Mayor McGavin stated as Alderman W. L. Morgan completed his explanation of the terms.

Alderman B. J. Gadsden said he was not satisfied with the terms, but considered them the best the city would get from Mr. Gillespie.

Alderman Archie Wills brought in his motion to advertise the structure for sale, noting the city was not in a position to gamble on the elevator, as it would be if the corporation were a private company.

Mayor McGavin voiced the opinion the city could get $25,000 a year for the lease of the elevator.

Alderman Gadsden invited the mayor to recommend that the question be tabled, saying he, the alderman, would put the motion if the mayor favored it.

"You're on the fence both ways," Alderman J. A. Worthington remarked.

The original motion to renew the lease was put and carried with the mayor alone dissenting.

The Wills' motion to advertise the elevator for sale was carried unanimously.

City Abandons Garbage Crusher

On the recommendation of the public works committee, the City Council yesterday decided to abandon the garbage crusher the Victoria Machinery Depot made for it.

That action was taken following reading of a letter from the V.M.D. stating the firm could not, owing to the pressure of war work, submit an estimate on the construction of a bigger and better crusher.

On that basis the council acted on a report from G. M. Irwin, city engineer, stating he could not recommend its acceptance.

On the same committee's recommendation the council released the Rose Fuel Company from its contract to supply the city with Nanaimo coal and awarded the contract to Kingham-Gillespie Coal Co. Ltd. at 17 cents more a ton.

Answers Land Policy Critic

Criticism of city land sales policy, voiced by Alderman W. H. Davies, brought a sharp reply from Alderman R. A. C. Dewar, lands committee chairman, in City Council debate yesterday afternoon.

The city, said Alderman Davies, was giving land away.

"As a man in the real estate business, Alderman Davies knows his firm has approached the city and made offers for city-owned properties that were ridiculously low," Alderman Dewar retorted, as he took exception to the alderman's remark.

The exchange brought a warning from the mayor to Alderman Davies and a smile from others on the council as they debated employment of a former city official by the lands department.

The appointment was approved on the recommendation of the finance and public works committees who had failed to consult the lands body on the question.

"Who's running the lands committee?" asked Alderman Archie Wills, a member of that group, as the recommendation was read.

Alderman W. L. Morgan, finance committee chairman, explained it had been impossible to place the former official in the public works department and that the committee thought he could be used in the lands section.

Alderman John A. Worthington warned the council of the precedent it was setting up. Two other former employees who had retired on pension had sought work when their superannuation had been cut, he said. In one case the pension had been reduced from $80 to $19 a month.

HEADING FOR CITY MANAGER

"You're opening up something here that's dynamite," he said.

What, he asked, was the council prepared to do with the other former employees of whom he spoke?

The council was heading for a city managership if it continued that course, he said.

Alderman Wills asked the finance and public works committees why they had not admitted they could do nothing for the former employee and asked the lands committee to consider using him if possible.

Alderman Ed Williams defended the action.

All members of the council expressed sympathy with the official, but Alderman Dewar objected to the manner in which the joint committee sought to pass him on to the lands department.

At that point Alderman Davies voiced criticism of the sales policy of the department, suggesting the official could assist the office in evaluations.

The appointment was confirmed with the mayor, Alderman Wills and Alderman Worthington in opposition.

He was quite willing to see the man given work but not in that way, the mayor said, adding the fact his application had been accompanied by a petition signed by former mayors, among others, would not persuade him.

Gas Retailers Ask For Larger Profit

Determined to be compensated for their losses arising from the rationing of gasoline sales, 50 service station proprietors have assisted in the preparation of a resolution which was presented to the directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce at a meeting Monday afternoon. The resolution received the unanimous endorsement of the directors and will be forwarded to the oil controller.

The resolution calls for "the restoration to dealers of the original margin of profit set by the B.C. Control Board (namely 5 cents) and in addition a further profit per gallon for losses due to wartime rationing."

The directors did not go on record as to how the change would be made, but it was pointed out that it could be by one of three methods: by cutting down on taxes, cutting wholesale costs or by increasing the retail price.

It was pointed out that since the province is spending less on road building and since the whole sale companies incur less distribution expenses, either body could absorb the cost.

Speaking for the gasoline dealers, R. R. Taylor said, "we feel we can do the rationing under the present system if we can be compensated for the extra costs."

One Hour Parking on Yates Street Is Killed

The move to establish one-hour parking on that section of Yates Street from Blanshard to Quadra failed in City Council yesterday afternoon.

The technicality which requires a full two-thirds majority for passage of a bylaw on its second reading defeated the proposal.

With one alderman absent, the council split 6 to 4 on the vote, leaving the affirmative without the majority to go ahead.

Voting with Mayor McGavin for the one-hour limit were Aldermen D. D. McTavish, W. H. Morgan and R. A. C. Dewar.

In the victorious minority were Aldermen Archie Wills, Ed Williams, B. J. Gadsden and P. E. George. The vote left the block without any parking limit.

An invitation was extended to the Pacific northwest section of the American Waterworks Association to hold its 1942 meeting in Victoria. The move to bring the association here was sponsored by Alderman Worthington.

Approval was given Alderman Ed Williams' proposal to invite adjoining municipalities to join the city in discussion of the creation of a Greater Victoria Water Board.

With the mayor expressing the view the action showed "how cheap and puny" Oak Bay was, that municipality's decision to cut away from the Greater Victoria A.R.P. organization was conveyed to the council in a letter. The action, the mayor said, placed the whole expense for the A.R.P. unit on Victoria.

A letter of appreciation for their action in maintaining the wading pool, its fence and the Beacon Hill Park lookout will be sent to members of the Kiwanis Club by the city on the suggestion of Alderman P. E. George.

City to Discuss B.C.E.R. Terms

In a move to secure improvement in B.C. Electric Railway Co. Ltd. transportation facilities here, the City Council yesterday requested its public utilities committee to interview company heads to see if there were any grounds on which they would spend money on the system without increasing fares.

That motion, sponsored by Alderman Archie Wills, grew out of consideration of Friday's conference between A. T. Goward, vice-president; G. M. Tripp, general superintendent, and the council.

Alderman Ed Williams urged the city follow up the promises of the two officials to have crossings improved and noise reduced.

Alderman B. J. Gadsden again sought assurance adequate safety measures were being taken on Point Ellice Bridge.

Alderman J. A. Worthington stated he had expected the mayor to call a meeting of the public utilities committee to go into greater detail on possible improvements other than those promised by the company heads. Alderman Wills noted two minor concessions had been made by Mr. Goward and Mr. Tripp, but remarked they did not cover the main issue.

Each day, he said, the B.C. Electric was operating its present equipment at the city's request. He asked if it would be possible to make some agreement with the company covering operation and improvement. Three years ago, he said, the B.C. Electric had offered to spend $20,000 a year on its equipment, but had received no agreement and had done nothing other than ordinary maintenance.

He outlined his suggestion for calling on the company to see under what conditions it would make improvement expenditures. The motion embodying the suggestion was put and carried.

The lands committee was asked to deal with a request from the executrix of the late Harry Wyles' estate asking the city to rezone the northwest corner of Begbie and Stanley Avenue for commercial instead of single-family purposes.

The water board was instructed to report on a request from D. Masters for water service to his property on Masters Road.

Leave of absence for war service was granted F. W. Patton, Johnson Street Bridge operator, who will go to the Victoria Machinery Depot.

The chestnut and fir trees in front of 2828 Irma Street were ordered removed at the owner's request.

Sale of three properties and one exchange were approved by the council on the lands committee's recommendation. A lot on the west of Asquith between Kings and Ryan was sold for $50. Two others on the south of Herald between Store and Government went for $2,200. A third parcel on the west of Moss between Fort and Wilsperer brought $400.

Will Lease Saxe Point

At the Esquimalt Council meeting Monday a letter from the Department of National Defence agreeing to lease Saxe Point property from Esquimalt for military use was received and filed. Reeve Alex Lockley and the municipal clerk, G. H. Pullen, will sign the agreement, under which the property will be leased, for the municipality.

Mr. Pullen reported that the monthly tax sale of September 10 was the lowest in many years and that there were no improvements of any consequence involved. One parcel was sold out of a total of 11 valued at $1,283.35. Fifteen parcels were up for sale at the corresponding period last year with a value of $1,999.70.

Twenty-five dollars was authorized by the council to be given in financial assistance toward the welfare conference which met at the Empress Hotel last week. The request for this amount came from Dr. Richard Felton, city medical health officer.

Permission was granted to the Department of National Defence to open a branch on South Anson Street and a portion of Vaughan Street for the purpose of laying a signal cable.

A request from Newstead Realty to have the lot at 712 Lampson Street rezoned as an apartment district was accepted by the council. Reeve Lockley said that a by-law would be prepared during the week to accommodate the rezoning.

Moonlight Flights

LONDON (CP)—Two young Canadian airmen, attached to a newly-formed R.C.A.F. night fighter squadron, have quickly become accustomed to moonlight battles with German raiders.

P.O. R. C. Fumerton, 28, of Fort Coulogne, Que., and Sgt. L. P. S. Bing, Regina, Sask., destroyed a Junkers 88 and severely damaged a Heinkel 111 in short, sharp fights over northeast England.

After setting the Junker's engines on fire with a short burst, the fighter closed in and set the raider ablaze from end to end. "It went down like a flaming torch, with burning pieces falling in a shower around it," said Fumerton, who used to prospect in the Arctic for a Toronto mining firm.
